

Announcing PMI India's Research & Academic Conference on Project Management

Getting India ready in a Project Driven Economy - Role of Academia

9th & 10th December 2011

at the National Institute of Construction Management &
Research (NICMAR), Pune

PMI India presents
Project Management
Research & Academic Conference
9-10 December, 2011, NICMAR, PUNE

Need for Project Management Education

Project management has become undeniably important across industries, but the increasing need for competent project managers is not being met, due to the skill gap in India. This needs to be addressed right at the college level through quality project management education.

Academic institutions are making an endeavour to integrate project management learning into courses across diverse categories – such as business, construction management, healthcare, pharmacy, finance, engineering&information technology. However, these are just the first few steps – there is a lot of potential in project management knowledge and research that needs to be harnessed for future progress.

PMI India's Research and Academic Conference on Project Management

As an initiative to take project management learning & skill development ahead, PMI India presents the first Research and Academic Conference on Project Management with the theme 'Getting India ready in a Project Driven Economy - Role of Academia' with the support of the PMI India Academic Advisory Group. The Research and Academic Conference on Project Management 2011 aims to bring together an audience of scholars, senior practitioners and students of project management & allied disciplines. It will feature plenary speakers and create opportunities for attendees to discuss new project management research findings & teaching methods.

Academic Advisory Committee for Research & Academic Conference on Project Management
